

Is Jesus Right? (or Left?)

Christians in the Public Square

Faith that Transforms Politics
by Ellen Ott Marshall

Both the religious right and the secular left have couched their positions in terms of unbending moral principles, certain in their possession of the truth, absolutizing the ethical positions that underlie their political commitments. Recent years have seen a hardening of positions and a refusal to cross boundaries—to cooperate, or even understand those with whom we disagree.

But Christian ethics teaches us that, while God's truth is indeed absolute, our grasp of it never is. Christians can best contribute to the contemporary political conversation by a sustained exercise of humility.
